If Queen Victoria keeps on fussing about the memory of John Brown, she will make him a bigger man than Gladstone.

Tornadoes, hail storms, and base-ball cranks, will long be the bane of this county. They seem to be essentially an American product.

Ex-Congressman Walls, of Florida, who was once a slave, is now running a "truck" farm in that state, and this year has made $8000. This is better than loafing about and whining for an office.

There is nothing like having a government that will run itself when the officials go on a hunting expedition. The government of the United States can do everything except to govern the polygamous Mormons.

Frank James will soon have all the engagements he can fill for lecturing. Although he robbed trains, broke into banks and committed murders, it is believed that he has conscience enough left, not to accept an offer to lecture.

Mr. Clinton Babbitt, secretary of the Wisconsin state agricultural society, has issued one of the handsomest complimentary tickets ever devised by the society. It is a beautiful lithograph on gold-beveled board, and has a striking fac-simile of the secretary's autograph.

Judge Ira B. Brunson, who recently died at Prairie du Chien, had been county judge continuously for thirty years. He was also a member of the territorial assembly in 1837, 1838, and 1839. Governor Rusk has appointed Charles S. Fuller, of Prairie du Chien, a county judge, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Brunson.

Complete returns from all the government land offices show that, exclusive of Indian lands, the amount of public domain disposed of last year was 19,035,688 acres, against less than 14,000,000 the previous year, and a little over 10,000,000 each in 1880 and 1881. The amount disposed of last year exceeds the aggregate for the four years 1875-78. Of the amount disposed of last year 8,171,704 acres were taken under the homestead act, against 6,213,045 the previous year, and 3,101,333 acres were taken under the timber culture act, against 2,566,086 acres in 1881.

Ex-Governor Elisha M. Pease, whose death was referred to in yesterday's Gazette, died at Lampasas Springs, Texas, on the evening of the of the 26th inst., after a brief illness. He was born in Connecticut in 1812 and had completed his 71st year. He had held many important offices in his adopted state, having been twice elected governor previous to the war, and after its close appointed military governor by the United States government, which office he resigned. He was identified with all the early history of Texas and took an important part in the formation of its constitution and laws. During the war he remained a firm and outspoken Unionist, and was almost the only prominent man holding those views who was allowed to remain unmolested at his home. His remains were taken to his residence at Austin, for interment. The deceased was a brother of Hon. John J. R. Pease and Mrs. Hamilton Richardson, of this city.

The officers of the Southern Minnesota fair have issued this notice: "To the public in general, to all friends of Rochester in particular, and to all who design or have designed to exhibit at the fair September 10th to 15th, this notice is addressed. The great storm crippled but has not destroyed us nor diminished our energy. Our fair buildings are not injured. Our hotels will all be ready to entertain guests and our citizens will as usual receive and care for all who come. Not one thing will be lacking to make the fair a success. All citizens unite in advising the association to go on. Come right on as though nothing had happened. Excursion rates during fair week will enable all from a distance to visit the fair and see the effects of the cyclone."

A dispatch from Milwaukee says that "among the 336 guests who have replied affirmatively to the invitation of President Henry Villard to join his great transcontinental excursion are the following Wisconsin parties: Gov. Jeremiah M Rusk; Edward Salomon, ex-governor, now residing at New York city; Gen. Lucius Fairchild, of Madison; Angus Cameron, United States senator, of La Crosse. From Milwaukee quite a delegation will respond. It comprises C. L. Colby, president of the Wisconsin Central railroad; P. V. Deuster; J. L. Mitchell; W. W. Colemen of The Herald, and a representative of the Sentinel. The delegation from abroad include a large number from Germany and England, fewer from the latter country than from the former."

Those who censure the republican senate of Pennsylvania for the long and expensive session of the legislature of that state, are either ignorant of the cause of the dead-lock, or are too partial to the democratic party to do justice to the republicans. After the adjournment of the regular session nearly four months ago, Governor Pattison called an extra session of the legislature to re-apportion the state into congressional and legislative districts. Now comes the point at issue: "The house, which is democratic, insists upon so gerrymandering the state as to deprive the republicans of their just rights. The republican senate has repeatedly offered generous propositions for a fair and reasonable compromise, but the democrats of the house want want 'the whole hog'—and that explains this protracted, expensive and hopeless dead-lock." If the democrats will agree to a decent apportionment, or one that is half-way decent and honorable, the republicans will vote with them, then adjourn and stop the $3,000 a day.

Volcanic Eruptions in Java—Scenes of Terror.

LONDON, August 28.—The latest advices from Batavia, the capital of Java, show that the volcanic eruptions in that island are much more serious than at first indicated. The disturbances began on the island of Krakatoa, in the strait of Sunda, about fifteen miles off the coast of Java. The deep ramblings were distinctly audible at Surakerta and Batavia about forty-five and twenty-two miles off, respectively. All through the night showers of red hot rocks and ashes fell, making complete darkness in all these towns. In Batavia there was an occasional fall, and it was difficult to keep the street lights burning in the European post. By the next morning all communication with Anjer was cut off, all the bridges having been destroyed by the descending rocks and ashes, and the road rendered impassable. The first eruptions were on Saturday night. On Sunday morning the disturbances had extended beneath the waters of the strait, and they were soon boiling and hissing violently, while great waves dashed upon the Java near shores and the temperature of the sea went up nearly twenty degrees. The threatening rumblings gradually became more and more distinct, and by and by the Malia Meru, the largest of the volcanoes of Java, was belching forth flames at a very alarming rate. Just before dark a great luminous cloud formed over the Gunung Guntur, and the crater of the volcano began to vomit up enormous streams of white, acid, sulphurous mud, besides large quantities of lava. There were rapid successive explosions, followed by tremendous showers of cinders and enormous fragments, which were high into the air and scattered in all directions, to fall after the force was spent upon the valleys below, carrying death and destruction. With these terrible eruptions came sympathetic demonstrations from the sea. The overhanging clouds were so surcharged with electricity that at one time over fifteen huge water spouts were seen. These have continued at somewhat long intervals ever since. Men, women and children rushed in terror from their tottering dwelling places, filling the air with their shrieks of horror. Hundreds were unable to get out before the houses fell and were buried beneath the great masses of huge rocks and mud, which were piled up where a few hours before all had been peace, happiness, and fancied security. The Gunung Tengger has not had an eruption before since the year 1800.

Perfect Success.

Those two words have a vast meaning when fully comprehend. A perfect success can be truthfully applied to Dr. Jones' Red Clover Tonic, which cures dyspepsia, biliousness, costiveness, all diseases of the kidneys, liver and bladder. It is a perfect tonic and blood purifier; it keeps the skin clear and bright, drives away pimples and makes the general health excellent. Price 50 cents, of Stearns & Baker.

A STEAMER BLOWN UP.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—About 4 o'clock this afternoon the steamboat Riverdale, running between New York and Haverstraw, on the Hudson, left her dock at the foot of Harrison street, North river, and steamed rapidly up the stream. The boat was to have touched at the foot of Twenty-third street for more passengers and her course was laid about 300 yards from the New York shore. When between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets her boiler exploded with terrific force, killing three persons and wounding eight others. Some were blown into the air and others were compelled to jump into the river to avoid the scalding steam which filled the vessel. After the explosion the boat drifted up to the foot of Sixteenth street and there sunk. The explosion was seen by a few river men and tug crews who were watching the boat when the accident occurred. There was a loud report, the smokestack, pilot-house, and the body of a man was seen flying through the air, and then clouds of escaping steam hid the wreck from view. People along the shore went to the steamer in row boats and tugs, and the police officers were informed of the accident. The office of Charities and Corrections was notified by telephone of the explosion and all the city ambulances were sent to the foot of Sixteenth street. The wildest and most exaggerated reports were circulated, and the number of killed and wounded was placed at upwards of fifty.

TRIPLE TRAGEDY.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 28.—A horrible triple tradegy occurred here at noon to-day on Court street, within half a block of the Court house. Jacob Bush, a rental agent and attorney in a small way, some time ago procured a divorce for Samuel Aldenberg, and there was a quarrel over the fee. Finally, Bush sued Aldenberg for slander. To-day the latter met the former on the sidewalk, and, after some words, drew a pistol, and, at a distance of three feet, shot him through the back, the ball going clean through the body and causing death. Aldenberg then shot down to the ground. The bullet glanced, and, making a slight flesh-wound on the arm of a livery-stable employe, struck Sam Campbell, a well-known bookbinder, who was passing thirty feet away, entering his abdomen and making a dangerous and probably fatal wound. Aldenburg then raised the pistol to his own head and snapped it, when the bystanders yelled and rushed at him. He ran into the rear yard of a store, and placing the pistol to his head pulled the trigger, scattering his brains and causing instant death. The whole tragedy did not take four minutes and occurred within a diameter of thirty feet in the narrow street. Aldenburg was about 60 years old. Bush and Campbell were middle aged, the latter unmarried.

LARGE BEQUESTS.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 28.—A certified copy of the will of Edward Clark, a New York millionaire, with the proceedings thereupon in the Surrogate court of Otsego county, was filed in the office of the register of deeds this forenoon. By the will the sum of $50,000 is bequeathed to Williams' college, where the late President Garfield was educated. Four grandsons of the deceased are bequeathed the sum of $250,000 each, while more distant relation receive sums ranging from $10,000 to $50,000. Besides these cash bequests, large and valuable tracts of land are given to the heirs of the deceased millionaire. By the terms of the will, James Meehan and James Bunyan are named executors of the will, and it is for the purpose of giving them title to the property of the deceased in this county that the authenticated copies of the original will and record are filed with the register of deeds.

MRS. SAMUELS AND CHARLEY FORD.
Kansas City Times.

Mrs. Zerelda Samuels and Charley Ford met each other face to face on Main street, near Fifth, yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Samuels had been visiting her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Jesse James, in this city, and with Jesse James, jr., her little grand son, was on her way to the Union depot when she met Charley Ford. She had passed on without speaking to Ford, but her grandson exclaimed: "Oh, grandma, there is Charley Ford!" At this she turned back, and going up to Ford, said: "Oh, Charley, Charley, you have broken my heart." Ford merely exclaimed, "Mrs. Samuels!" and no other words were exchanged. They had not seen each other since the assassination of Jesse James.

"I can't describe how I felt," said Mrs. Samuels, in conversation with a reporter at the Union depot. "I don't know what I said to Charley Ford or what he said to me."

"How is Frank James getting along?"

"Oh, very nicely."

"Do you think he will be cleared?"

"I don't see why he shouldn't be."

A TERRIBLE HAND.

MULDOON'S STORY OF THE WAY A CONFEDERATE WAS KNOCKED OUT.

Muldoon in Philadelphia Times.

He stood six feet two inches high in his stockings—when he had any. He weighed upward of 200 pounds. He was all bone and muscle, and his hand was just about the size, and it had the pleasing outlines, of a first-class, sugar-cured ham. I assure you, gifted as he was by nature, no male had the inherent right to kick any harder than this lieutenant of heavy artillery could strike with his ham-like hand.

Just before this the lieutenant had expended quite a sum of money for a horse. It required some considerable horse to tote him about. His command occupied a hill. The infantry was just in front, but at the foot of the hill.

"Oh men, with sisters dear,
Oh men, with mothers and wives."

On the hill overlooking that quiet Pennsylvania village, and through that graveyard, of that palluciid morning in July, there was a heap of lead and iron scooting around, and among other projectiles that zephyr-like were floating about, a shell came along and blew off the head of the lieutenant's horse. It was not an incident calculated to make a man feel immensely happy. The horse's head was gone and the lieutenant did not feel very well himself.

However, he crawled out, felt of himself as if he had some doubt about his being all there, and just then, as luck would have it, a tall, lank and lean Confederate lieutenant colonel, who had been captured by the infantry and sent to the rear, rushed toward the lieutenant with the velocity of an unrestrained southern cyclone. The lieutenant colonel passed close to the lieutenant. It was not a good time for reflection. The lieutenant evidently did not give the subject the consideration it merited. He seemed somewhat careless about the proprieties of the occasion. At all events he let go one of his ham-like hands, caught the lieutenant colonel squarely between the eyes and set him back some ten feet nearer the cause which was subsequently lost.

As nearly as could be determined the patriot from the south (where fistic contests are reported to be not so popular as the more chivalrous encounter of the shot-gun and bowie-knife) was somewhat disgusted. He sat on a stone, rested his elbows on his knees, with his chin on his hands, and at once fell into what seemed to be a deep, brown study.

As soon as circumstances would permit, a northern patriot approached the evidently saddened southern patriot and sought to administer some verbal consolation.

I think I have read that there are times when words are inadequate to describe the situation.

Such was this time.

The lieutenant colonel did not raise his head. Nature, which has done so much for that beautiful spot, seemed to have charms for him.

"See yere, stranger," he said, "I don't mind fighting in the regular way, and I'm derned if I can't stand shot and shell as long as any one. But when a man is captured and sent to the rear, if he's got to have his whole face mashed in you can just count me out."

But, remarked the northern patriot in reply thereto, holding in his hand a canteen to give point and zest to his speech:

"Here is a friend who wishes to meet you."

The lieutenant colonel slowly raised his head. His face was somewhat rumpled, but it was all there. And a genial, forgiving smile gradually overspread his features, in spite of the unmitigated mourning his eyes had already began to assume, as he reached for that canteen and remarked:

"Stranger, I don't care if I do."

And he did.

A FINANCIAL STRINGENCY.
Texas Siftings.

"The country, sir?" said a man on Austin avenue, "the country? What country are you talking about? This country? This country won't last six months longer."

"How do you know this country won't last six months?" inquired a bystander.

"How do I know? Its in the air. The premonitory symptoms are all around thicker than picnic ants. Coming events cast their shadows before. Yes, sir, we are on the verge of a financial panic which will rattle us from centre to circumference."

"Do you notice any peculiar signs of a panic?"

"Lots of 'em, Lots of 'em, sir. There is a financial stringency in the money market which, I dare say, might be appreciated by even you. Haven't you noticed it?"

"Not particularly."

"Not particularly, bah! Let me tell you, sir, I can bring this fact home to you forcibly—forcibly, sir, or else I'm a mistaken individual. I can prove it to you before the whole crowd."

"Well, shoot ahead and prove it."

"Very well, sir. Didn't you loan me a dollar a couple of months ago?"

"Yes."

"Can you let me have another to-day?"

"I would"——

"That's it? That's it! You are going to refuse, and right here, before all these bystanders, you tacitly admit that a financial stringency prevents me paying you the one loan, or even negotiating another. If the financial atmosphere isn't panicky, I don't know what it is."

THE FAR NORTHWEST.

Speech by Col. Pat Donan.

After voyaging up the majestic Mississippi and Missouri nearly two thousand miles from the tropical delta where Eads has planted his well-jobbed jetties, the traveler reaches Omaha or St. Paul, in what scarcely a century ago was an unknown land, and thinks now he has certainly reached the utmost verge of civilization. But he soon learns that he has only entered the gateway to the great imperial western domain that still rolls away in an unending glorious vista of prairie and woodland, mountain, lake and magnificent river, city, village, gold-mine, field and meadow, till its occidental slopes bathe their snowy feet in the billowy Pacific.

We believe that there is a large class of patent medicines whose ingredients are skillfully and conscientiously selected and compounded, and that they have been very useful in the domestic treatment of disease. We must come to this conclusion in precisely the same way that we come to the conclusion that a man is a skillful physician—by what they accomplish, and by the testimony of those who have used them. The reputa- of a patent medicine is sustained by exactly the same evidence that supports a skillful physician's reputation. * * * Many of those medicines came out of the regular practice, and were prepared and originally prescribed by the best physicians. * * * Very few of them, we believe are humbugs and frauds in the consciousness or the intent of their makers. * * * The people, who are necessarily the judges, both of doctors and of medicines say that these medicines are not all frauds, and if human testimony is good for anything, that fact is established. —Scribner's Monthly.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 29.

THE PROFITS ON BOOKS.

New York Letter.

I heard an old publisher say the other day that there was no money in the miscellaneous book business, so I asked Mr. Appleton what his experience was. There is not as much as there used to be, he said, and novels were hardly worth publishing, on account of the cheap libraries. When an American author and a foreign author met upon the same footing the former had a chance, but now, with the best foreign authors at twenty cents, the American at $1.50, the American had no chance unless he stood very high. Before the cheap libraries, both foreign and American novels retailed for the same price, $1.50 a volume, and they sold well at that, but of course a publisher could not afford to pay a large price to an English author for advance sheets of his work only to have a cheap library grab it up without paying by the time he got it well advertised. When Disraeli wrote "Lothair" Mr. Appleton cabled him a large offer for the book, which he accepted at once, and they published it at $1.50, and sold 80,000 copies. On the whole, however, Mr. Appleton thought there was more money to be made in special publications. For instance, he published 1,000,000 copies every year of Webster's primer. There is never any falling off in this sale. Some dealers order as many as thirty cases at a time, and each case holds seventy dozen primers. They are sold principally in the south and west, and by dealers in Yankee notions and at cross-road stores rather than in regular bookstores. Just after the war the sales reached 1,500,000. This was because every darkey in the south thought that all he had to do to learn to read was to buy a Webster's primer, but, when he found that something besides the possession of the book was necessary, he gave up in despair. After that the sales fell back to their normal amount, 1,000,000 a year. Another special book with a large sale is the Encyclopedia Americana. At the retail rates the money taken in for this publication every year is $960,000. The sales are by subscription, and the Appletons have enormous machinery for working subscription books. A crack agent of this house is Mr. Samuel Collins, who, since September last, has netted for himself the neat sum of $20,000 on one book, "Artistic Homes." But then Mr. Collins is an exceptionally good canvasser. Probably some of your readers are thinking as they scan these figures, that they will go into the subscription book publishing, but they may be relieved when I tell them that the Appletons put $500,000 into the encyclopedia before they got a penny in return. But when it begun to pay it was a fortune for every one who touched it. The editors, Messrs. George Ripley and Charles A. Dana, made $100,000 each in a lump sum off of it, besides being paid a royalty on the sale of the book. It is not the sun which shines for all, that made Mr. Dana a rich man. That has helped, of course, but the Encyclopedia Americana has largely augmented his wealth.

THE TAILOR'S STITCHES.

Youth's Companion.

The president of a Boston bank once redeemed a counterfeit fifty-dollar bill on his own bank, not doubting for a moment that the signature upon it was his own. Mr. Josiah Quincy mentions in his "Figures of the Past," that the incident was told at Daniel Webster's dinner table and led to a discussion of the value of expert testimony. Several of the guests asserted that it could not be depended upon, but Mr. Webster defended it. He said that he had found it valuable, and that experts were like children who saw more than they could explain to others.

"And this reminds me," he added, "of my story of the tailor. A case of life or death was being tried, and the tailor's testimony was very important.

"He had been called to prove that he had made a certain coat for the criminal, and he swore to the fact stoutly. Upon cross-examination he was asked how he knew that the coat was his work.

"'Why, I know it by my stitches, of course.'

"'Are your stitches longer than those of other tailors?'

"'Oh no!'

"'Well, then, are they shorter?'

"'Not a bit shorter.'

"'Anything peculiar about them?'

"'Well, I don't believe there is.'

"'Then how do you dare to come here and swear that they are yours?'

"This seemed to be a poser, but the witness met it triumphantly. Casting a look of contempt upon his examiner, the tailor raised both hands to heaven and exclaimed,—

"'Mercy on us! as if I didn't know my own stitches!'

"The jury believed him, and they were right in doing so," continued Mr. Webster. "The fact is," he added, "we continually build our judgment upon details too fine for distinct cognizance. And these nice shades of sensibility are trustworthy, although we can give no good account of them. We can swear to our stitches, notwithstanding they seem to be neither longer nor shorter than those of other people.

QUIETED A MULE.

Arkansaw Traveler.

Ex-Congressman Slemmons tells of a pair of feet that must have been objects of great regard in their day. One day a party of men, including Jackson, the man of big feet, were preparing to attend a political barbecue. It was soon discovered that there was no way of conveying Jackson, as all the vehicles were full.

"Let me ride that mule over there?" asked Jackson.

"There isn't a man in the world that can ride that animal. He'll work to a buggy or plow, but no one can stay on his back."

"I'll try him anyway," and the determined man instructed several negroes to catch the mule and hold him. The animal plunged and kicked, but finally Jackson secured a seat in the saddle. Every one expected to see him dashed to the ground, but the mule looked around, saw the man's feet, and walked away peacefully. He thought he was between a pair of shafts.

IN COLORADO.

HOW THE LITTLE NARROW GAUGE ENGINE CLIMBS THE MOUNTAIN.

Editor Peck in Peck's Sun.

After the last letter had been written for The Sun, and had gone, and the writer had got over the feeling that he ought to have gone with it, and quit being a cow-boy at his age, the evening train on the Denver & South Park road, a part of the "U. P." system, was taken for Gunnison, on the Pacific slope of the Rocky mountains. The little single-barrelled sleeping car looked like a play-house, and when the passengers got seated it seemed as though they must bring out their "play things" and have a real good time "playing house;" but they didn't. When it was time to go to bed, and we asked the porter to pull out our trundle-bed and tuck us up, he looked hurt, and there was a painful expression on his face till noon the next day, when a poultice of half a dollar seemed to relieve him very much, and the swelling went down on his lip. All night the little engine toiled up the small foot-hills, and in the morning she began to climb for business. Before the train was a canyon, and ten thousand feet above was the snow clad mountains, and this little toy engine had got to haul six cars to the top. It did not seem possible that it could be done, but nothing is impossible in this world if you stick in your toe nails. It was an up-hill business, but by constantly climbing, and never looking back, and winding around the heads of gulches, it was seen that the little engine was conquering. In some places one could see four tracks, one above another, winding around among the mountains, and each track had to be reached in its turn, and at each puff of the iron "burro" we were a little higher. The conductor pointed to something that looked like a long caterpillar away at the top of the mountain, and a black spot about as big as the cover to a blacking-box, near the reptile, and said, "There's the snow sheds, and the black spot is the mouth of the Alpine tunnel," and all realized that if we could get up there and go through the tunnel the summit would be reached, the highest point a railroad train ever was known to be in America. On went the little cook stove, and in an hour the snow banks were reached, the snow sheds were entered, and the train stopped at the mouth of the tunnel while the passengers washed each others faces in snow, and picked a few flowers growing beside the banks. There was a scene that a person ought to have about half a day to take in properly, and a month to describe. Mountains down stairs now, as well as up stairs, for the higher the train got, the higher were the adjacent mountains. It seemed as though, if you fell off that train, before you had gone down a mile you would run a great big mountain right through yourself. The air was cold, and the train went in the tunnel to get warm, and in five minutes came out on the other side, and the Pacific slope was reached. In the centre of the tunnel is the dividing line, and if we had shed tears from both eyes, one tear would have gone down to the Gulf of Mexico, and eventually have found its way to the Atlantic ocean, while the other tear would have gone down the Pacific slope and entered the Pacific ocean. We wanted to cry, just to try the experiment, but having received a dispatch on the train that morning that the loved ones at home were well and happy, the crying utensils would not work, so any persons that may be searching for a couple of salt tears in those oceans, may get left.

Emerging from the tunnel the view was even more beautiful than on the east side, for the rocks were more precipitous, and there seemed more danger, for on the other side, if a train went off, it couldn't go more than a mile or two down before it would strike trees, but on the west side there would be plain sailing on rocks all the way down. In some places it was only a foot from the track to the edge of the precipice, and if the train should go off there and roll down, it would muss our clothes awfully before we got to the bottom. But to relieve the mind of the reader, it may be instructive to state that the train remained on the track. All brakes were set, the engine was ready to be reversed at a moment's notice, and the train just slid down the mountain. There was no puffing now, and the little engine seemed to be holding back. It was more like sliding down hill than anything else—it was so easy and exciting. But they do not allow the trains to make any better time going down hill than going up, the sole idea of the management being safety. An ordinary pen cannot describe the views, and we will leave that task to the poets like Benjamin F. Taylor, and go on to Gunnison with a rare appetite.

MULE RIDING IN LONDON.

Burlington Hawkeye.

The latest fashionable craze in London is mule riding. It will never become popular in America. We haven't the right kind of mules. The American mule won't stand any society nonsense. Nobody would attempt to ape this English craze except the dudes, and the average mule knows so much more than the dude that he, the mule, would ride it, the dude. And he, the mule, would rub its legs, the dude's legs, against the fence, and when he, the mule, bucked, it, the dude, would shoot over his head, the mule's head, that is, and alight on the place where its brains, the dude's brains, would be if it had any, so that the custom, while affording the dude excellent exercise, would not give it much pleasure. Egyptian mules, such as the Englishmen use, may do well enough for this gayety, but the American mule, whether from Colorado or Kentucky, is too abrupt in his habits and spasmodic in his gait to be trusted with any such fashionable frivolity.

Testimony from the Press.

To those afflicted with lung trouble, hear what W. D. Wilson, of the Ottawa (Ill.) Times says: "After being disabled for three months with a cough, and lung trouble, often spitting up blood, can testify that I am cured permanently by the use of Dr. Bigelow's Positive Cure." Prof. Horsford's Baking Powder.

A VALUABLE ELEMENT.

Dr. M. H. Henry, the celebrated family physician of New York city, says: "The use of Prof. Horsford's preparation offers admirable means for the introduction of a valuable element into the system with the food of every-day life."

MILITARY HONORS TO THE BONES OF AN OLD WOMAN.

Harper's Magazine.

An amusing incident occurred not long since in a southern town which was a sort of shuttlecock for the two armies during the war, and was tossed from Federals to Confederates so often that it can scarcely be sure to this day what its politics are or to whom it belongs. The receding tide of battle on one occasion stranded, among a number of other men, a certain young officer, severely wounded in the head. He fell into the hands of some kind people, who nursed him faithfully until he died, and buried him in the village cemetery. About the same time an old woman who was housekeeper in a gentleman's family in the neighborhood fell down-stairs, fractured her skull, died, and was buried near the soldier. Here both rested quietly enough until lately, when the relatives of the former concluded to have him brought back to his old home and buried among his own people. The remains were sent for, identified (as it was supposed) by the wound in the head, and duly carried to his native place, where, partly from his belonging to an influential family, and partly because he had particularly distinguished himself by his gallantry, they were met by various military companies, relatives, friends and hundreds of the citizens, taken out to the cemetery, and buried with all the honors of war, long speeches from various orators, tons of flowers, and immense flow of patriotic feeling on the part of the people.

Not long after, the brother of the defunct housekeeper determined to move his sister into a lot that he had recently bought in the cemetery, and ordered the body to be exhumed, when it came out that the good old soul, who, it is true, had lived in "stirring times," but had never "whipped" anything but cream, or "beaten" other than cakes and omelets, had been dragged off a hundred miles and more and buried with great pomp and circumstance as a dashing young cavalry officer. The brother was furious at the discovery, and threatened to bring suit unless she was immediately returned; so the exchange was effected as quietly as possible. The real hero was laid to rest, as very likely he would have preferred to be, with only a few prayers from those who loved and mourned him, and the worthy woman who had been masquerading as a man of war, and who if she attended her second funeral in spirit must have been properly astonished by all that was said and done, was restored to her indignant relative, and for the third time committed to mother earth.

A BABY ON THE BATTLEFIELD.

The Martinsburg correspondent of The Wheeling Intelligencer tells the following story: "Almost every family and individual here has some bit of romance in connection with the late war. To-day at a musicale, to which I was kindly invited, I met a lady whose talents as a musician and whose remarkable beauty had attracted my attention. She possessed that rare type of prettiness that is wholly southern. Great, deep blue eyes, the face perfect in every feature, hair rich in its abundance, and wonderful in its tint. This is her story: Twenty years ago, when the tide of battle in long, bloody waves swept over the terrible field of Manassas, a baby girl was left an orphan on the battle-ground. During the changes of the fateful day the home of the blue-eyed girl was at one time directly between the fire of both armies. As the first shots whistled above the house the parents started to flee for a place of refuge. A dozen yards from the door both were shot down, and the baby, an orphan, without sister or brother, was alone in the world. The battle raged on, dead and dying were everywhere, but the baby was unharmed. The day wore away, and just as the sun's last rays, half hidden in the curling smoke, sadly kissed the earth good night, Gen. Jubal Early, riding by, heard the baby's cries. He dismounted, and taking the little waif up, cared for it until he could place it under the care of his sisters. They watched it through its infantile years, giving it an education and a world of love; and now that baby, grown to womanhood, lovely and accomplished, the pet of a wide circle of friends who call her "Waif," is the sole support of those two women, sisters of the rebel general. Over these she sits directing a musical offering, every inch a woman, noble and true. She talked to me modestly, yet gracefully, of her early years, and her beautiful eyes filled with tears as she spoke of her two old friends. If I should write her name it would not be a strang one here, for all the city knows Miss Ida Henry.

A TON OF BROOK TROUT.

Carson Appeal.

Yesterday morning about 10 o'clock one of the men who were working alongside Lake Bigler wood flume at the lumber yard in Carson called out to the men below that all the fish in Lake Bigler were coming down the flume. A few seconds later a school of fish struck the apparatus which is placed in the flume to turn sticks of timber over the edge of the flume, and being suddenly deflected, fell over the workmen. The water was fairly bristling with trout and suckers, and they came in irregular numbers, about six inches long, and all alive. Nearly a ton of the fish fell under the flume, and the workmen took them away in baskets. A ton of fish in half an hour is about the best score on record for Nevada. It is believed that they were crowded into the supply pond of the flume by the storm, and then driven into the flume in bunches of say two or three dozen in a bunch. They would strike the reflector and fly in all directions. This thing was kept up for nearly half an hour, when they got beautifully less, and then ceased coming altogether. They were mostly brook trout.

DR. FISHBLATT

Medical and Surgical

INSTITUTE

Late Lecturer and Professor in one of the leading medical colleges in the United States, editor of the New York Medical and Surgical Journal, consulting physician and operative surgeon in the New York Hospital for Chronic Diseases. Physician in Chief of the Medical and Surgical Institute of Cedar Rapids.

ON ACCOUNT OF HIS

Immense Practice

IN

Janesville, Wis.,

WILL MAKE HIS NEXT VISIT AT THE

MYERS HOUSE,

Wednesday, August 29th.

And Remain Two Days

When he can be consulted on

Deformities, Spinal and Chronic Diseases.

Dr. Fishblatt

Has discovered the greatest cure in the world for weakness of the back and limbs, involuntary discharges, impotency, general debility, nervousness, languor, confusion of ideas, paleness of sight or giddiness, diseases of the throat, nose or skin, affections of the liver, lungs stomach, or bowels,—those terrible disorders arising from solitary practice more fatal to their victims than the songs of the sirens to the Mariners of Ulysses, blighting their most radiant hopes or anticipations, rendering marriage impossible.

YOUNG MEN.

Who have become victims of solitary vice, that dreadful and destructive habit which annually sweeps to an untimely grave thousands of young men of exalted talent and brilliant intellect, who might, if otherwise, entrance listening senates with the thunder of their eloquence, or wake to ecstacy the living lyre, may call with full confidence.

Marriage.

Married persons, or young men contemplating marriage, aware of physical weakness (loss of procreative power, impotency,) nervous debility or any other disqualifications speedily relieved. He who places himself under the care of Dr. Fishblatt may religiously confide in his honor as a gentleman, and confidently rely upon his skill as a physician.

Organic WEAKNESS.

Immediately cured and full vigor restored. This affliction—which renders life a burden and marriage impossible—is the penalty paid by the victim of improper indulgence. Young persons are apt to commit excesses from not being aware of the dreadful consequences that may ensue. Now, who that understands this subject will deny that procreation is lost sooner by those falling into improper habits than by the prudent? Besides being deprived of the pleasures of healthy offspring, the most serious and destructive symptoms of both mind and body arise. The system becomes deranged, the physical and mental functions weakened, loss of procreative power, nervous irritability dyspepsia, palpitation of the heart, indigestion, constitutional debility, wasting of the frame, cough, consumption and death.

A Cure Warranted.

Persons ruined in health by unlearned pretenders who keep them trifling month after month, taking poisonous and injurious compounds, should apply immediately.

Dr. Fishblatt

Graduated at one of the most eminent Colleges of the United States, has effected some of the most astonishing cures that were ever known; many troubled with ringing in the head and ears when asleep, great nervousness, being alarmed at certain sounds, with frequent blushing attended somewhat with derangement of the mind, were cured immediately.

Particular Notice.

Dr. F. addresses all those who have injured themselves by improper indulgence and solitary habits, which ruins both mind and body, unfitting them for business, study, society, marriage. These are some of the sad, melancholy effects produced by the early habits of youth, namely: Weakness in the back and limbs, pain in the head, dimness of sight, loss of muscular power, palpitation of the heart, dyspepsia, nervous irritability, derangement of the digestive functions, debility consumption, etc.

LAFAYETTE'S WELCOME.

Youth's Companion.

Give the cool, cold Yankee something to rouse him, and he is as enthusiastic as a child. Lafayette roused him as he seldom has been excited, during the Frenchman's visit to Massachusetts. Even then the stiff and exclusive Boston became wild with excitement, and surrendered herself to the patriot and hero—and the cultured classes led the enthusiasm of the streets.

Dr. Bowditch, the eminent mathematician, was on his way to his office, where he intended to view in a quiet, decorous way, becoming one of his years and social position, the procession that escorted the people's guest. Being stopped on the street by the passing of the military escort, he ascended a flight of steps, intended to wait in quiet dignity till the procession had gone by.

But the moment he saw Lafayette he forgot his dignity and lost his self-command. When he recovered his senses, he found himself struggling with the crowd at the side of Lafayette's baroucho, and hurrahing with all the strength of his lungs.

Lafayette attended the commencement exercises of Harvard college. The valedictorian was Josiah Quincy, Jr., who spoke a latin discourse. He drifted among the heroes of the revolution, and suddenly turning to the hero, said, "Thou also, Lafayette!"—The rest of the sentence was drowned in the uproar. The audience sprung to their feet. Ladies waved their handkerchiefs and men shouted, "Welcome, Lafayette!"

During the triumphal progress of the general through the state, men crowded up to one side of his carriage to shake his hand, while on the other mothers held out their babes for him to kiss. Fifty years after, women boasted that they had been kissed by Gen. Lafayette.

One event, which occured during his stay in Boston, brought out the respect for the Sabbath which then pervaded the community. One Sunday afternoon, Lafayette drove out to Quincy to dine with the venerable ex-President, John Adams.

On secular days four white horses drew the general's carriage; but on that day reverence cut down the number to two. Crowds assembled in the town of Quincy to see him pass, but there was not even a whisper of welcome. The sightseers greeted him with their eyes and honored the day by their silence.

IT DIDN'T HIT.

Detroit Free Press.

There was a chap on the boat who lived at Jackson, Miss., and he was telling us many anecdotes regarding the negro population. Among others, he had a friend who one day asked of an aged darkey:

"Well, Colonel, what particular ossification has predominated over the ramifications of late?"

The old man gave a pull at his hat with one hand, and scratched his head with the other, and answered:

"Well, sah, I reckon dat was him swine down de road a few minutes ago on top of a mewl!"

There was a passenger from Rhode Island who was greatly amused by these anecdotes, and two or three times afterward I caught him hunting in a dictionary for big words and stringing them together. When we arrived at Natchez he was all loaded up. A lot of us went up to see the town, and as we gained the crest of the long and dusty hill we met a colored woman on her way down. Here was the chance the smart aleck had been waiting for, and halted her and demanded:

"Madam, have you systemized the disability of the precocious influenza this morning?"

He was bowing and smiling, and she looked thunderstruck. After a minute she asked:

"What's dat you remark?"

"I percolated the interrogation as to whether you had ambuscaded the gigantic verbosity," he continued.

"No, sah, I hasn't," she said as she removed the basket from her head, "but Ize gwine to right away!"

With that she brought him a clip with her hand on the ear, and followed it up by a bunt in the back that sprawled him into the dust and left him gasping like a fish.

"If de verbosity wants enny mo' he can foller me down to de levee!" she remarked as she walked off; but he didn't. He was dust from head to foot, his humorous nature had evaporated, and he got back to the boat to keep his berth for the next eight hours. The negro is an odd coon at times, but there are other times when the "gigantic verbosity" doesn't hit his funny-bone within a rod.

LINCOLN ON M'CLELLAN.

A REMINISCENCE RELATED BY EX-GOVERNOR AUSTIN BLAIR, OF MICHIGAN.

Detroit Free Press.

In a recent address at Bellevue, Mich., ex-Governor Austin Blair gave an account of the convention of governors of northern states that met at Altoona, Pa., at the time of the issuing of the emancipation proclamation by President Lincoln in 1862. The convention was called to bring an influence to bear upon President Lincoln to induce him to issue a proclamation or do some act that should set at liberty the 4,000,000 slaves; but the president outwitted the twenty-two governors by issuing the proclamation the same day their convention met. The governors then decided to go on to Washington and present to the president, not the urgent resolutions they had intended, but an address complimenting him upon the step he had taken. This address was prepared in an able manner by Gov. Andrew, of Massachusetts, who read it to President Lincoln as he sat at his desk, while the governors were seated around the room. After that an incident happened that Gov. Blair said he had never before related to any one. Gov. Kirkwood, of Iowa, since a United States senator and secretary of the interior, rose and said:

"Mr. President, I should be delighted could I return to my home and say to the people of Iowa that the president of the United States believes Gen. George B. McClellan is a loyal man." He branched off upon other subjects connected with the war, and then closed by repeating, with more emphasis: "I should be glad, Mr. President, to be able to tell the people of Iowa that you believe in the loyalty and patriotism of George B. McClellan."

Taking his feet down from the desk upon which they had been resting, Mr. Lincoln sprang to his feet and straightened up apparently two inches taller than usual and said, with much force and apparent excitability: "Loyal! George B. McClellan is as loyal as any one of you." Then stopping a moment the president's face assumed its naturally pleasant look and he continued, in a natural and pleasing tone: "I'll tell you, gentlemen, Gen. McClellan is an exceedingly well informed general and is very careful, in fact, too careful, and the great trouble with him is that when he wins a victory he doesn't know what to do with it."

"Why not try somebody else?" mildly suggested Gov. Blair.

"We might do that and might lose an army by it," was the quick response of the president, which Gov. Blair admitted "completely unhorsed him."

LEVI LAZARUS, OF MISSISSIPPI.

Texas Siftings.

Levi Lazarus is one of the most enterprising clothing merchants in the south. Some years ago, when he was a clerk for his uncle, Mr. Isaac Cohen, he achieved the enviable reputation of being the best salesman in the clothing line in the state of Mississippi. Many hard stories are told of Levi's feats as a salesman, some of which are probably about as true as the statements he was accustomed to make about his "goots."

Sometimes, when every other argument failed to "clinch" a trade, he would appeal to the sympathy of his prospective customer by telling him that his, Levi's, employer, had threatened to turn him off if he did not sell more goods than he had been doing; and he would pleadingly add: "Now, my frent, you don't vant to see a poor man lose his job and pe turned out into der cold worldt to stharve, don't you see? Now, I dell you vat I do. Dis peautiful zute ish marked dwenty-five tollars, and der poss vont dake one cent less, but rader dan not zell it to you—and den lose my job—I vill pay fife tollars out of my own booket, and let you haf it for dwenty tollars, py cheminey!" So saying he would take five dollars from his pocket and throw it into the cash drawer, as an evidence of good faith.

Levi was particularly popular with the negroes, and could sell them "clodings" when no one else could. One evening a darkey, who had just sold a bale of cotton, came in and bought a hat and pair of shoes. Levi tried to sell him a $35 suit of clothes, but the negro replied that he only had $20 left, and that he was going to buy a milk cow with that. "A milk gow!" exclaimed the zealous clothier, "den I'm shost de man vat you vants to see. Der boss has shust agreed to dake thirdeen cows vit young calves, for von pad debt, and he vill po so glat ofe you vill keep von or two of dem vor him. I gif you dose glose ver dwenty tollars, py cheminy, und led you haf two cows to keeb."

It is needless to say that the darkey bought the "glose" for $20, but when he came to get the "two cows to keeb," Levi very sorrowfully informed him that the "man vot owed dot pad debt had raised de money und reteemed dose gows."

On one occasion Levi was summoned as a witness in some trivial case. A young lawyer began the examination by asking.

"What is your name, sir?"

"Levi Lazarus," meekly responded the witness.

"What is your occupation?"

"I sell nice ready-mate cloding, und I sells sheaper don anypody else in town, sir."

"What is your religion?" persisted the lawyer, evidently determined to get at the bottom facts of Levi's social and moral status.

"My tear, sir," responded the witness, in his most persuasive tone, "I haf told you my name vas Levi Lazarus, und dot I sells nice, sheap cloding, und now you vant to know my religion. Vell, sir, I am a Bresbyterian, but blease don't gif me avay."

The last statement, and the earnest, confidential tone in which it was made, brought down the house, till the presiding judge and sheriff had to threaten to arrest the audience before order could be restored.

Bret Harte's mother was a beautiful and uneducated girl, whom his father married out of a factory, and whom he made "one of the finest ladies in Hudson, N. Y."

Telegraphic Matter.

Our latest correspondence, May 16, 1883, brings to us the narrative of Henry E. Ingram, the general superintendent of the District Messenger Co., of New Haven, Conn. Mr. Ingram says: "For many months I had been sorely troubled with a weak and tired feeling across the loins, almost invariably accompanied with a headache. I had noticed also that at stated periods following these pains my urine would be highly colored, and leave a heavy brick colored sediment when allowed to stand in the vessel. I could not work, and I was discouraged to an alarming degree. Nothing helped me. I was prescribed for by some of the best physicians in New York city, where I was located at that time, but derived no benefit or relief. When almost ready to give up in despair an acquaintance said to me, 'I want you to try Hunt's Remedy.' I did so, and hardly twenty-four hours had elapsed before I obtained relief, and in three weeks' time all the aforesaid ailments had disappeared, and I improved steadily, and was infused with new life, so that I could resume my business again, which is one that subjects me to strains of all kinds, which are likely to effect the kidneys, namely: Erecting telegraph and telephone lines. Hunt's Remedy now occupies the most honored place in my cabinet of medicines. I would not be without it, and I cheerfully recommend it to all who are troubled with diseases of the liver, kidney, or urinary organs. It never fails to cure."

33 CENTER STREET.

Town Clerk Forty-Two Years.

The following is from Mr. OTHNIEL GAGER, the well-known and respected Town Clerk of Norwich, Conn. Mr. Gager is 89 years old, and has held this position of trust for 42 years, and his word is as good as his bond. On May 5, 1883, he writes as follows: "For many years I have suffered with disease of the kidneys and bladder, and have no hesitancy in recommending Hunt's Remedy as a specific for these complaints. It has not only been the means of relieving me of terrible pain, but has cured a number of my acquaintances. To-day I am performing the duties of the office of Town Clerk, which I have held for forty-two years, which I could not be able to do were I not in a fair state of health owing to the use of Hunt's Remedy."

HOPE FOR THE

BALD

The Roots do not come out when the Hair leaves the Skin.

It has always been supposed that after the head became glazed and shiny it was hopeless to expect any hair. The following cut showing the growth of the hair, will illustrate better than words the fallacy of the old idea. This cut is a microscopic view of the follicle and papilla, from which the hair grows:

It will be readily seen that though the hair is gone from the surface it is still alive healthy beneath the scalp, and is only prevented from growing by the contraction of the follicle in which it should grow.

How The Hair Grows on the Bald Head!

We apply friction to bring the blood to the surface and supply the scalp with a perfect hair-food to nourish the weak roots. We do not profess to grow hair on every bald head. Some from the use of alcoholic and poisonous preparations have destroyed the follicle. These cases are hopeless, but so sure that no one else should be discouraged from using one bottle of

as this will demonstrate whether the follicle and roots are alive, and will also STRENGTHEN the remaining hair, stop its FALLING OUT, and cure DANDRUFF and ITCHING.

I HAVE USED BENTON'S HAIR GROWER!

John B. Taylor, (one of the heirs to the immense Taylor estate), of Newport, Ky., says of the Benton Hair Grower: "I have used it and find it all that is claimed for it; like it very much. It has grown hair on my head to some extent."

Benton Hair Grower Co. Dear Sirs:—About a year ago one-half of my head was bald and shiny, and as nice one-half of my head was bald and shiny, and as nice as the palm of my hand. I was told by physicians that it would be impossible for hair to grow on my head, as I had suffered so much from neuralgia. I am over sixty years of age, and began to use your Hair Grower less than a year ago. I have now as good a head of hair as I ever had in youth, it is now from five to six inches in length and in such a luxuriant condition that no one would think I had ever been bald.
Mrs. C. M. WEED, 118 Clinton St., Cleveland, O.

PARTIAL BALDNESS!

Baldness generally commences on the crown of the head, sometimes on the front of the head, in either case it is usually the result of fevers. If BENTON'S HAIR GROWER is used at once, the falling hair will stop and new hair will start.

Interesting reading about the hair sent on application with thousands of testimonials.

For the use of LADIES who are troubled with Dandruff, Gray Hair, Falling Hair or Itching of the Scalp, it is invaluable.

Chronic Diseases.

A Special Study for Years.

Dr. F. B. BREWER,

Has made Chronic Diseases of the Throat, Lungs, Heart, Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, Nerves and Blood.

A special treatment for years. He is not a boastful, ignorant pretender, but an educated physician, seeking to do good, by devoting his talent and energies to the treatment of a class of maladies that have been with him a long and patient study. To be able to treat successfully chronic diseases it requires that a physician should be a sound, thorough scholar in the art of science and medicine generally. He should give his entire time to their study, be thorough in his investigations and have a long and varied experience. Dr. Brewer claims to work no wonders or to do any more than any well educated physician can do, who devotes his whole time to the study and treatment of chronic diseases exclusively, and has had his many years of experience. For years Dr. Brewer has visited the the places he now visits, and has obtained his reputation by being honest in his dealings, candid in opinions and reasonable in his charges. Those who are afflicted are invited to call, investigate and decide for themselves. It will cost nothing to do so. Address all letters to Briefiets.

—Karl at the opera house this evening.

—No criminal business in the municipal court to-day.

—Ripe tomatoes, grown in this locality, are now plenty in the Janesville market.

—Remember the concert by the Bower City band, on the corn exchange square this evening.

—Solos, duets, trios and quartets, vocal and instrumental in Lappin's hall to-morrow night.

—Mr. Ole Evenson has been making some extensive repairs in his business block on North Main street.

—Reports continue to come in of great damage to the tobacco and corn crops by Monday night's hail storm.

—The Rockford Gazette says that "the Janesville Guards have entered for the prize drill in this city fair time."

—Have you a ticket for the musical and literary entertainment in Lappin's hall to-morrow evening. If not get one.

—Mr. Peter Myers is putting a new roof on his tenement house, corner of Main and North Second street, second ward.

—"There is beauty in variety." The programme of exercises to be given in Lappin's hall to-morrow night is full of beauty.

—Miss Zuercher has kindly consented to favor the audience in Lappin's hall to-morrow evening with an exhibition of her talent in music.

—Mrs. A. C. Murison and daughter, of Milwaukee, are in the city visiting relatives and friends and are now guests of Mr. and Mrs. John McCulloch.

—The band connected with the Karl combition discoursed some good music on the streets this noon. The company occupy the opera house stage this evening.

—The Sea Side oyster house, on Milwaukee street bridge, in addition to their large stock of choice fruits and berries, have a good supply of large and delicious, watermelons, fresh from the patch.

—Miss Cora Parker, daughter of Mr. Sumner Parker, of La Prairie, fell from a hammock at her home yesterday, and sprained one of her ankles, making a cripple of her for a week or two.

—Remember the entertainment at Lappin's music hall to-morrow evening, for the the benefit of the young ladies sodality of St. Mary's church. The entertainment has been prepared with great care, and will be worthy of the patronage of all.

—The Sunday school of the First M. E. church are enjoying a pic-nic at Pope's Springs to-day. The day being pleasant, they will have a joyous time. The City of Newport will bring the party home at six o'clock this evening.

—The Rockford police force have just adopted the regulation hat, and the Gazette says, they present a fine appearance. Our regular police force adopted the regulation hat a long time ago, and likewise makes a fine appearance when he appears at the head of a procession.

—Mr. Julius Hammerschlag has removed his household goods to Chicago where his family will in the future make their home. Mr. Hammerschlag will remain in the city to attend to his tobacco business, unless he succeeds in selling out, in which case he will join his family in Chicago.

—Ex-Sheriff H. L. Skavlom came in from a visit to his farm in the town of Newark last evening, and reports that the hail storm was very severe in that town. The tobacco crop in that town is ruined, and the corn suffered considerable damage. He says that he does not believe a whole leaf of tobacco can be found in Newark.

—It is now claimed that Janesville has the champion bootmaker in the United States, in the person of Mr. Joseph Kelley, who is now employed in the Janesville boot company's shops. Yesterday, on a small wager, he pegged and heeled twelve pairs of boots in one hour and fifty-nine minutes, and was awarded the championship.

—Mr. Thomas Makin, who keeps a saloon on West Milwaukee street, has been called upon to answer to three violations of the law—for selling liquor on Sunday, for keeping open saloon on Sunday and for selling liquor to minors. The violations of the laws in this way, are of frequent occurrence, but the city attorney and marshal are right after them.

—A report comes to us that an old German gentleman, 83 years of age, by the name of Hess, living about six miles west of this place, committed suicide last Tuesday, by hanging himself, supposed cause being homesickness, he having arrived in this country a few months since, and has longed for his own native land continually since his arrival. He was living with his son, Mr. Ferdinand Hess.—Evansville Enterprise.

—Rumors concerning a murder in the town of Plymouth, have been circulated on the streets since last evening, in which there is probably no truth. One rumor says that a couple of young men, who live near Afton, got into a dispute at a dance in Hanover on Friday night, which finally ended in a fight, one of the combattants being kicked so severely in the chest that he died yesterday morning. The district attorney or sheriff have receiven no information in regard to the affair, and are of the opinion that the whole thing is a hoax.

—The funeral service of the late Lewis L. Wilbur, took place this afternoon at two o'clock at the home of the deceased in the Fourth ward. The Rev. Dr. Hodge, who officiated, made a few exceedingly touching and appropriate remarks, and Mrs. St. John, Miss Martha Willey, Mr. Clarence L. Clark, and Mr Smith, sang, at the special request of the family, "Go Bury thy Sorrow," and "Nearer My God to Thee." The pallbearers were Charles Skelly, D. Davies, B. J. Daly, P. Lennartz, John Huntress, and P. Riley. The attendance was large, and the contribution of flowers and fitting emblems by neighbors and friends, was very bountiful and strikingly beautiful. The remains were taken to Oak Hill cemetery for interment.

Ex-Mayor Croft Appointed Agent for the St. Paul Company.

For the past week or ten days rumors have been current regarding a change in the management of the office of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway company in this city, by the transfer of Mr. Wm. B. Noyes to another field and the appointment of a new man as agent there. Many names have been connected by rumors with receiving the appointment, some of whom had declined the position. Yesterday, however, after having held a consultation with the managers of the railway company, Mr. T. T. Croft received the appointment as agent in this city, and he is to assume control of the company's office on the first of September. In accepting this responsible position, Mr. Croft will not, at present, relinquish any of his business in this city or elsewhere, but will only devote so much of his personal attention to his private affairs as he can spare time away from the depot. In appointing Mr. Croft, the railway company have selected a live, energetic business man, one who understands and attends to his business, whatever that may be, and one who commands the confidence, respect and good will of the community in which he lives. This appointment will give universal satisfaction to our business men and the people at large. While Mr. Croft has been remarkably successful in every business which he has engaged in, we have no fear that this will be an exception, and extend our well wishes for his continued prosperity.

We have not yet learned what position has been tendered to Mr. Wm. B. Noyes, who has been the agent of this company for the past eighteen years, that gentleman being now in Milwaukee on a leave of absence, but upon his return we shall be informed.

—Don't forget that children love music. Fifteen cents will procure for your child and evening's refined amusement in Lappin's hall to-morrow night.

An Evansville Enterprise.

The pretty little village of Evansville, in this county, is making a mark in the direction of building up its manufacturing interests, and this is what the State Journal says about it: "The State Journal is in receipt from the Evansville Manufacturing company of a small paper of tacks, being some of the very first made within the state. The company starts out with fourteen tack machines and reports flattering prospects. It also has an establishment under the same general management,—that of Mr. C. Snashall,—for the manufacture of 200 gross of parlor and friction matches per day. The company is composed of enterprising, wide-awake men, who are determined to push the work they have entered upon, and Wisconsin people will unanimously wish them abundant success."

A Clergyman's Testimony.

W. E. Gifford, pastor M. E. church Bothwell, Ont., was for two years a sufferer with dyspepsia in its worst form until as he states "life became an actual burden." Three bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters cured him, and he tells us in a recent letter that he considers it the best family medicine now before the country for dyspepsia and liver complaint.

The Weather.

REPORTED BY PRENTICE & EVENSON, DRUGGISTS.

At seven o'clock this morning the thermometer registered 54 degrees above zero. Clear with north wind. At one o'clock p. m. the register was 79 degrees above zero. Clear with northwest wind.

WASHINGTON, August 29, 1 a. m.—The following are the indications for to-day:

Upper Lake Region—Fair weather, easterly winds, rising followed by falling barometer, stationary or slight fall in temperature.

Personal.

—Mrs. George Shurtleff and children are visiting Mrs. Shurtleff's parents in Beaver Dam.

—Mr. W. H. Main and wife, of Rockford, are in the city visiting relatives and friends, and will probably remain here for some weeks.

—Mr. R. D. Torrey, formerly manager of the Milwaukee exposition; was in the city to-day. He is now state agent for the accident insurance company of North America.

—Secretary W. T. Vankirk of the Rock county agriculture society, and Mr. Will McKey started this noon for Minneapolis, to attend the fair now in progress in that city.

—Mr. Albert Bergh, who has been visiting friends in this city for several days, left to-day for his home in North Branch, Minnesota, where he is engaged in the drug business.

Mr. Anson Rogers returned last evening from a four week's visit in the east. He visited New York and Boston, and spent some time at Saratoga. His health is quite good.

—Messrs. Mark Collins, Thomas Madden and T. McCue will start on Saturday evening for Aberdeen, Dakota, on a pleasure and business trip combined. They will be absent several days, and visit several other places enroute.

—Mr. A. D. Nott, formerly with the Janesville machine company, has been engaged by Messrs. Strickler & Miles, in the interest of the celebrated Dead-lock hay carrier, and on Thursday Mr. Nott will leave for Des Moines, to attend the Iowa state fair, and exhibit this labor saving machine to the Hawkeye population.

—Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Quinn arrived home on the evening train from Chicago, last evening, and will be warmly welcomed by Mr. Quinn's hosts of friends here, none of whom will forget to extend their hearty congratulations. Mr. and Mrs. Quinn will make their home in he second ward, occupying Mr. Quinn's house on Cornelia street.

—The Beloit Free Press:—Hon. Wm. Ruger, of Janesville, was in the city yesterday afternoon.——Mrs. R. Brand, mother of Otis Brand, of Janesville, is visiting with J. O. Fuller's family.——Tommy Welch, a young son of John Welch, attempted to couple cars in the Northwestern yard this morning just for fun, and got his right hand pinched between the bumpers. His fingers were badly crushed and he will lose the end of one.——Messrs. John and Henry Kemmitt, Mrs. W. B. Burdick, Misses Annie Kelty, Kittie Kemmitt and Emma Kemmitt, of Janesville, visited Beloit friends yesterday.

Fortunate Chance of a Lieut. Chance, U. S. A.

Lt. Josiah Chance of the 17th Regiment Infantry, U. S. Army, at the close of the late war, having served entirely through it, was commissioned in the regular service. Eleven years ago he was stationed at Bismarck, and here he has been ever since. Under his superintendence Camp Hancock was built, and the present Fort Lidcoln. He shook hands with the gallant Custer when he left to march to death, and one of the first tears to fall over his sad fate fell from Lieut. Chance. At present he is at Lincoln, and no officer at the fort is held in better esteem than he. He drew $30,000 in the July drawing of the Louisiana State Lottery, at a cost of $2. Every Bismarcker knows him, and the Tribune heard but one expression: "Good! It couldn't have fallen to a better man." He says he will invest it in Dakota dirt, and will remain in the service. Through the Bismarck National bank he drew on New Orleans for his $30,000. Lieut. Chance held two-fifths of ticket No. 37,448. The ticket drew the capital prize of $75,000.—Bismarck (Dakota) Tribune, July 17.

Good Advice.

The Evansville Enterprise publishes the following item, explaining the operations of a gang of sharpers who have been playing their game on the people of this county:

"We are informed that there are several land-sharks, as we should call them, in this part of the country attempting to gull the farmers out of their hard-earned money in getting them to sign papers to act as their agents for different articles. In a few days the papers signed are presented by another person in the form of an order for a large amount of worthless goods which are forced upon the farmer, or the note sold and collected. Rumor has it that one of our well-to-do farmers has already been gulled. Parties called upon him with a preparation for tarring roofs and proposed to tar his roofs for nothing if he would become their agent in his neighborhood, which proposition he gladly accepted, and signed what he supposed to be a contract to that effect with a view of getting his roofs tarred for nothing. In a few days a small amount of the preparation was shipped to him and his order presented for nearly $200. In another case a farmer was requested to let an agent set up a horse power corn sheller and feed grinder on his premises and make him their agent, trying in every manner to get him to sign a postal card, which he refused to do, but so persistent were they to effect their purpose that another agent called upon the farmer in a few days informing him that the machinery was awaiting him at the depot, at the same time presenting his order for the same upon a postal card. Our advice to everybody is to sign nothing in the hands of a stranger; when they call upon you for any such purpose get out your old shot gun and give them just time enough to get out of your range.

HOUSEHOLD WORDS.—DeLand's Soda and Saleratus have made their way into nearly every household in the land; and wherever the mistress prefers good materials to bad, they keep possession. They are the best in the market.

Milton.

—W. H. Greenman, who has been spending some months in the New England and middle states, returned on Monday looking as if he had enjoyed the trip.

—The hail storm of Monday did no damage in this place, but some hail fell a mile south of here. It rained heavily here and was accompanied by heavy thunder and lightening.

—During the storm of Monday evening a son of James P. Bullis, living in Harmony, was prostrated by lightning, but not seriously injured.

—Mrs. A. S. Dunham has been very ill with inflamation of the bowels, but is convalescent at the present writing.

—W. B. Anderson has gone to Marinette to play second base for the Marinette club. The Allen brothers are both playing with that club, consequently Milton is pretty well represented.

—J. B. Anderson has been making some needed improvements in his elevator and is again handling large amounts of grain.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The greatest medical wonder of the world. Warranted to speedily cure Burns, Bruises, Cuts, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Cancers, Piles, Chilblains, Corns, Tetter, Chapped Hands, and all skin eruptions, guaranteed to cure in every instance, or money refunded. 25 cents per box. For sale by F. Sherer & Co.

Shopiere.

—The public school will commence next Monday with Miss Marion Willey of Janesville, and Miss Lillie C. Hubbard of Shirland Ill., as teachers.

—Rev. Hiram Houston, who has occupied the Congregational pulpit for the past two months, has had to return to his home in Deer Isle, Maine, on account of business which required his presence. The church have given him a unanimous call to return and occupy the pulpit as pastor.

—Thos. Holmes and wife and their grand-daughter Nellie have gone to Sterling to make a short visit with H. S. Parker and family.

—This town has been all worked up over the Davis creamery failure the past week. It is about like what the boy said when he was sleeping on the railroad track: "We may wake up and find ourselves dead before morning." The patrons did wake up and found the Davis creamery dead, and the loss to them was from $5,000 to $6,000. It is strange that we farmers cannot "smell a mice" when a man is paying 18 cents for cream and the butter is only worth 19 to 20 cents for the best. Let the farmers of this town form a stock company and make their own butter and do their own failing, and if they fail and make $75,000, it will be in their pockets and not in a Chicago man's pocket.

—Our high sheriff had better take out a life insurance policy before he goes around attaching any more creamery cans.

—Mr. A. Smith goes east this week to visit his old home in Massachusetts.

—The ladies of the Congregational church have bought three fine pulpit chairs in place of the old sofa, which has been the resting place of the preacher for the past 25 years. The pulpit has been painted to represent the French walnut, and is the finest piece of work we have ever seen. This work was donated by Ed. Hopkins, who has no superior in this line of business.

—Those who have planted the Nebraska seed corn will want at least 3 months good weather yet. The dry spell has hurt all the corn more or less.

—Ed. Mosley has a large stock of new plows for sale, also wagons and buggies of every description.

—We understand J. C. Church, of Clinton, has made arrangements with his creditors and is going to start up again. He will ship grain from our station which is a great benefit to our farmers.

—D. Q. Stark has as fine a lot of coal at the depot for $8 per ton as you can buy in Beloit or Janesville for the same money.

A low condition of health is common with many who allow themselves to worry. Mental anguish causes bodily sufferings. Anxiety and care has broken down many constitutions. A train of disorders usually follow mental distress. Heart affections, nervousness, sleeplessness, dyspepsia, liver complaint, kidney troubles, etc., are among the list. A sure remedy for relieving all mental and physical distress is Brown's Iron Bitters. It at once strengthens every part of the body making work a pleasure and care unknown.

Mr. Samuel Lindow, Franklin, Wis. says: "Brown's Iron Bitters has cured me of a very severe attack of neuralgia."

Dr. J. H. Myers, Fairfield, Iowa, says: "Brown's Iron Bitters is the best iron preparation I have ever known in my 30 years of practice."

GRAND OPENING
OF THE
CARPET TRADE
FOR THE FALL TRADE OF 1883, AT
The New York Cash Store!
The first new stock in Janesville. We shall open on MONDAY MORNING, AUGUST 13.

Nearly 100 pieces of entirely new patterns of Extra Super Ingrains, Tapestry Brussels, Body Brussels Velvets, Moquettes, and everything else that belongs to a first-class Carpet House, which will be sold at prices that will defy all pretended competition in this or any other city. Having in the last 50 days closed out almost our entire stock, it leaves us to start in the fall trade with almost an entire new stock. We are able to show on Monday morning, Aug. 13, over 30 new patterns of Body Brussels alone. No such show of Body Brussels was ever before shown by any of the carpet houses in this city; also a splendid line of Roxbury Tapestry Brussels, a magnificent line of Super Lowell Ingrains, very fine patterns, fancy Cocoa Mattings for offices, and a fine assortment of Linoleum Cloths and Oil Cloths in all widths.

Special attention is called to a line of Brussels that we are selling at 75 cents. splendid patterns. No such goods ever before in this city at the price
